INDIANA IMPRINTS

1804 - 1849

A Supplement to Mary Alden Walker's
"Beginnings of Printing in the State of Indiana," published in 1934

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

MISS MARY ALDEN WALKER's excellent monograph, The Beginnings of Printing in the State of Indiana, published at Crawfordsville in February, 1934, was a valuable contribution to the general history of the early press of the United States, a field of research in which I have been working for a number of years. I was naturally much interested in checking Miss Walker's chronological list of books printed in Indiana before 1850 with such records of early Indiana imprints as I had accumulated. As I had pursued inquiries in a number of directions which Miss Walker had not included in her investigation, I was not altogether surprised to find that my card index contained a considerable quantity of titles which are not in Miss Walker's list. In an effort, therefore, to make the record of early Indiana imprints more nearly complete, I am glad to take advantage of the opportunity now afforded to publish my supplement to the Walker list under the auspices of the Indiana Historical Society.

Miss Walker omitted from her study all official state publications, with the quite reasonable explanation that official state documents are adequately covered in catalogues or bibliographies of such material already published or now projected. Strictly speaking, such titles legitimately belong in a record of the beginnings of printing in the state, as the imprints of a number of the pioneer printers are found only on such publications. However, in the following list of titles "not in Walker" the same principle of selection has been followed—unless I have inadvertently admitted a few titles which a more critical bibliographer might have classified as state documents.

Miss Walker also omitted broadsides, but her reason for doing so was less cogent than in the case of the official publications. Broadsides are among the most interesting and useful evidences that we have of the activity of the early press, particularly in western communities. Many of them have historical value, also. I have therefore included in my list about twenty-five broadsides because they have, to me, at least, a special interest. Those included, however, are by no means all that might be added to a bibliography of Indiana imprints.

Some of the titles herein (see nos. 20, 41, 42, 45, 48, 56, 82, 163, 209, 253, 267, 309, 327) have already been recorded by Miss Walker, but are included here with more complete information than Miss Walker was able to give.

It will not escape notice that a large number of the titles presented here are the minutes of local Baptist associations. There is hardly a richer source of information as to the activities of obscure printers working in out-of-the-way printing points than these unostentatious little pamphlets, which are preserved in great numbers in such collections as the Samuel Colgate Baptist Historical Collection at Hamilton, New York, and the library of the American Baptist Historical Society at Chester, Pennsylvania. I am under great obligations to both these collections of Baptist material for the aid given me by supplying a large number of titles.

Some titles are here included (nos. 21, 123, 141, 284, 331, 337, and the doubtful titles 339 and 340) of which no extant copies could be located. I shall be grateful for information of them from any collection in which copies may be found.

There are also many titles herein which bear no imprints to show the name of the printer or the place of printing. In each case, however, I am satisfied that it is safe to say that they were printed in Indiana.

It may be added that, in the present publication, I have followed my own usual style of bibliographical description, giving line endings and page dimensions both ways, in addition to pagination. And I have, as a matter of course, used the symbols adopted by the Union Catalog of the Library of Congress to designate the collections in which the titles are to be found. I cannot commend too highly, to anyone working in the field of American bibliography, this scientific, standardized system of symbols.

One of the most useful features of Miss Walker's work is her list of Indiana printers, and another is her list of Indiana printing points. Neither can be complete, of course, if based on a list of titles from which official state publications are omitted. But the titles here presented, even without state documents, make possible a considerable revision of both these lists. I shall not undertake to revise Miss Walker's dates of the activities of the printers, though many of the new titles show in many cases either earlier or later dates than Miss Walker has recorded. And, of course, there are many additions to her tally of the number of items printed. But I think it will be found worth while to present the following list of printers, printing offices, and printing points which are "not in Walker." Italicized place names indicate sixteen printing points which Miss Walker did not record. The asterisks indicate names interpolated from the imprints on state documents.

In closing this brief introduction, I desire to express my appreciation to a number of librarians who have rendered especially helpful service in the listing of these titles: Mr. Edward C. Starr of the Samuel Colgate Baptist Historical Collection, Miss Esther McNitt of the Indiana State Library, Miss Florence Venn of the Smith Memorial Library of the Indiana Historical Society, Mr. L. Nelson Nichols of the New York Public Library, Mr. Willard O. Waters of the Henry E. Huntington Library, Mr. V. Valta Parma of the Library of Congress. A general acknowledgment is due to the librarians of most of the institutions in which imprints are located.

To my associate, Mr. Albert H. Allen, I am grateful for his competent and painstaking aid in assembling this material and preparing it for publication. Finally, I am appreciative of the interested coöperation of Dr. Christopher B. Coleman and his competent assistant, Miss Nellie Armstrong, in seeing this copy through the press.

 God is just; and that His justice cannot | sleep forever."—Jefferson. | [Double rule] | [Newport, 1840.] [ 156 ]

x cm. Broadside. Text in 2 columns.
 "The Northern Rights will be published in Wayne county, Indiana, commencing on the first of the 12th month, 1840. The terms will be Two Dollars per annum, payable in advance. The character of the paper will be essentially different from that of any now published; and it will be printed in quarto form for binding." The proposed title for this anti-slavery publication raised such a storm of protest that it was changed to The Protectionist. It began publication on January 1, 1841, as a biweekly, with Arnold Buffum as editor. It later became the Free Labor Advocate and Anti-Slavery Chronicle.

This "Newport" is now Fountain City; it is not the Newport of Vermillion County.

DOUBTFUL TITLES

FARMERS' AND MECHANICS' BANK OF INDIANA.

An Act to Incorporate the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Indiana. Madison: Office of the Indiana Republican. 1817.

[ 339 ]

No copy known. This act probably appeared as a reprint from the Indiana Republican, Madison, April 17, 1817, in which it was set in a wide measure, not at all in the customary newspaper style, but as if the type were to be used for a reprint.

The Believer's Holy Walk. Designed for the profitable improvement of the Christian life. New Albany ? 1825. [ 340 ]

Not known. Advertised in the New Albany Microscope and General Advertiser of March 19, 1825, as "just published and for sale at this office."
